CENTURY 21 NY METRO ANNOUNCES NEW HIRE OF TEN PERSON TEAM HEADED BY WESLEY STANTON, EVP

(New York, New York, February 27, 08) Century 21 NY Metro, a full-service Manhattan residential real estate agency, has hired Wesley Stanton as a sales and rentals agent, managing his 10-person team.

Stanton comes to Century 21 NY Metro with over four years of real estate industry experience. The team he will manage consists of agents such as Chad Schneider and Ian Aldridge who previously worked on his team prior to joining C21NYC.

“Wesley personifies what an agent should be: hard working, tech savvy and an expert on client support. Having completed over 200 transactions last year, I am sure he will go beyond even that with the support of the C21 brand. I look forward to working with him and his team,” explains Mike Simon, president, C21NYC.

Prior to signing on at C21NYC, Stanton headed a team of 10 agents at Manhattan Apartments and consistently ranked as one of the top three agents in the company. Born and raised on the Upper East Side of NYC, Wesley grew up in an environment where large commercial real estate investments, transactions and mortgages were often the topic of discussion. Practically his entire family works in commercial real estate. He attended the prestigious Allen-Stevenson School, Loomis Chaffee Boarding School and obtained a degree in finance and economics from Lehigh University. Wesley, upon graduation, completed his series 7 and worked in institutional equity sales and research for ING Barings on Wall Street. He then went on to become vice president of a consulting firm that served small public companies with fundraising, M&A activities and commercial real estate ventures. He is a member of The Real Estate Board of New York, The Friars Club, The National Arts Club and ASCAP,

“I am extremely excited to join the team at C21 NYC and look forward to being a principle component in the most globally recognized real estate brokerage,” says Wesley Stanton, executive vice president, C21NYC.
