

Powered by  ClickabilityOpenings

United Nude Moving to Bond Street

United Nude

Avant-garde shoe company United Nude has abandoned its Elizabeth Street digs (where it was sold in Terra Plana) in favor of a new space on Bond Street come May.

United Nude's will likely appeal to Bond Street's upscale-but-choosy clientele and Crain cites the 50 percent drop in rent as the reason for the move. The shoe company joins other boutiques in the area with a high cool factor, like nearby Oak, and insiders suggest that that's just what the developers in the area are hoping for. As SBC Associates Inc. broker Pedro Carrillo told Crain's: "They're trying to turn the area into a very high-end, exclusive block for residential tenants, and they've been purposely looking for the right kind of tenant to bring allure."

Find this article at:

<http://www.nbcnewyork.com/blogs/threadny/THREAD-United-Nude-Moving-to-Bond-Street--89608892.html>

BY Kelly O'Reilly // Wednesday, Mar 31, 2010 at 03:45 EDT