Charles Rutenberg LLC Celebrates The New Year With A New Team

Within her first three months as the newly-minted president of Charles Rutenberg LLC, seasoned broker and society ingénue Stefani Markowitz has swiftly reinforced the firm's standing as one of the fastest growing companies in New York City, launched a sleek new website, brought in Academy for Continuing Education's Esther Muller to lead complimentary broker-coaching sessions each week and recommitted to the 100% commission structure for all its 525 brokers and agents. In addition, Rutenberg has added a full roster of "concierge services" to assist agents with board packages and closing documents.

"The New York office was founded by a Wall Street titan who understood that fair compensation is the way to attract the best of the best," said Markowitz. "We know that smart brokers work hard and deserve to keep what they've earned."

Rutenberg brokers and agents pay a monthly fee of $99 that provides them with access to a private phone line and voice mail, desk, computer, administrative support, coaching and training sessions, advertising discounts, public relations support, credit card services, same-day check writing and the company's extensive databases and networks. In return, they retain 100 percent of their commissions and are responsible for nominal closing costs of no more than $2,000 per transaction.
